

Archives Collecting Statement

Curtin Information Management and Archives captures, organises, preserves records of enduring value to Curtin University and the State of Western Australia.

We do this so we may share the story of Curtin University and enable future use of this information.

We also do this to comply with our obligations under the State Records Act WA 2000.

Our Archives captures and retains information about:

- our administration and decision making;
- our heritage, history, culture;
- our role in tertiary education;
- our role in research activities;
- our engagement with local and global communities.

This information may belong to

- Curtin University or its predecessor organisations;
- records of individuals with a relationship to the University or whose work has significance to the University;
- research collections of standing

This information may be found on a variety of formats

- as physical files, documents, objects, textiles;
- as digital files;
- as digital systems or databases;
- as web content.

Access to the University Archives is open to University staff and to researchers and scholars by arrangement.
